

DOCTORINTERNET

HOW TO USE THE INTERNET FOR HEALTH & MEDICINE

(VERSION 1.01 - BASICS TO INTERMEDIATE)

Within 15-30 minutes, even if a novice, you can be doing professional-level research, using the easy to follow routines in this book. * It can take decades for new information to get into practice; but now you can find the latest treatments and research, worldwide, with the DoctorInternet program. * Do not forget your local, public library as a resource. In fact, to use the information in this book, you do not have to personally have a computer nor even an account on the Internet because most public libraries have access, and you can use one of the librarians there to assist you with the procedures.

This is the electronic version of the book, a copy of which comes on CD ROM and is also posted on the web-site for subscribers.

Millions of people (both patients and professionals) are beginning to use the Internet for researching health and medicine. Until recently, the main scientific databases were available only to specialists on a subscription basis. Now, they are open, without charge, to everyone in the world. However, It can be chaotic if you do not know what you are doing. The essential barrier is the knowledge of how to effectively use these databases and the many other aspects of the Internet; and that is what DoctorInternet does for you.

Since 1972, Dr. Chadd Everone has been doing medical research reports for individual patients, health professionals, and corporate clients; and he is recognized as one of the leading authorities in this field. Here, he gives to you his research routines in an easy to follow, step-by-step set of procedures.

"In any medical situation, these are some of the central issues for both the patient, the facilitator, and the medical professional. 1) Has the proper diagnosis and staging been made? 2) What is the state-of-the-art treatment for the particular medical problem? 3) What is the status of the most current research, in terms of new or modified therapies? These apply whether one is newly diagnosed, already in treatment, or in remission. In this book, you are shown how to use the Internet to address these and virtually every other important issue in modern medicine - including health and prevention".

DoctorInternet is an essential reference for any person who wants to be more actively involved in one's medical care. For health and medical professionals, it is a necessity. Also, the interests of science writers, students, researchers, investors, and anyone with an interest in bio-medical technology are included.

DOCTORINTERNET®

So, like our mascot, no matter where you may be in the world, as long as you have an Internet connection and DoctorInternet routines, you will have access to your medical information.

www.doctorinternet.com

ISBN 0-9701066-0-2

U.S. $24.99